New Feature:

Periodically, we will be featuring a current member of CACHE. This will help us get to know each other, but also get to know how people run their practices, what sorts of issues they are interested in working with, who their clients are, their backgrounds, and how they became interested in the hypnotherapy profession

Member Profile

Over the past 5 years, Dallas Nye has been practicing as an acupuncturist in Colwood, BC, working with clients and focusing on physical pain, and mental-emotional issues. She found over time that she was able to effect change, but that she wanted to incorporate another modality to make more profound and permanent changes in regards to mental health.

Dallas became interested in hypnotherapy at a young age. With progressive parents, she went through hypnotherapy at the age of 12 for issues relating to anxiety, and found it to be extremely helpful. It was a natural progression to incorporate this same modality into her practice.

Dallas now works about 25 hours a week, both with hypnotherapy and acupuncture, and often combines the two modalities into one ~90 minute treatment. Clients seem to enjoy these combo-treatments; they relax more fully, enter a deeper state of trance and experience profound results from this combination.

Dallas is now a director at large on the board of CACHE, and believes in the importance of a strong association, working to advance the profession.
